111 AW 17 Telugu

1: Dube, S. C. Indian Village. Ithaca: Cornell University Press. 1955.

Pp. xiv, 248.

Yale: Nn96. I3. 955D.

[This book is based upon a field study made by a research team from Osmania University under the direction of the author, an Indian anthropologist. The book is very well written, and includes thorough discussions of the social, political and religious structure of the village of Shamirpet. While this is primarily a descriptive study of a village, the author is concerned with the concepts and techniques applied to community studies, and he frequently cites relevant theory. The concluding chapter deals with culture change in the community as seen in the context of India as a whole. There is a forward by Morris Opler. --Analyst]

Field date: 1951-52
Analyst: R. H. Ewald

Evaluation: Ethnologist--5
Processed in 1955